WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower laid before Congress today a bulky program ranging from foreign aid to medical help for the aged but warned against "reckless spending schemes."

"This truth we must take to heart: in good times, we must at the very least pay our way," he said in a special message sent to the Senate as it resumed its election-year session. The message also will be waiting for the House when it reconvenes a week hence.

In the face of Democratic and some Republican criticism that the nation's defenses are growing relatively weaker in the face of Communist threats, the President insisted U. S. military power "is second to none and will be kept that way."

Saying he was taking measures to improve the armed forces' readiness, he said these may necessitate "a modest increase" in military personnel and money. If funds are needed, he said, he will ask for them.

But national security demands congressional action, too, Eisenhower said, and called for appropriation of the full amount authorized for foreign aid. He noted the appropriation bill for the mutual security program as it now stands, its half a billion dollars under this.

"The nation's security and our inescapable interest in a stable world demand that these amounts be restored," Eisenhower said.

Congress authorized appropriation of $4,086,300,000 for foreign aid and mutual security, but the House voted to hold the actual appropriation to $3,504,500,000. The Senate has not yet acted on the appropriation bill.

Eisenhower advised Congress that he had already taken some actions to strengthen this country's military posture and that the Defense Department would carry them out "with its available resources insofar as possible."

While House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President's wording meant that some funds impounded by Eisenhower were being unfrozen, and that Congress would be asked for more money if needed.

Hagerty estimated the impounded amount at $1,600,000,000. The President also told the legislators he wants:

1. A 100-million-dollar increase in flexible foreign aid funds "to keep America poised for sudden developments such as those in the Congo where a U. S. airlift and other efforts were needed suddenly and critically."

The House and Senate foreign aid legislation now pending would grant Eisenhower 150 million dollars for this contingency fund.

2. A 600-million-dollar authorization by Congress for a program of aid to Latin America. He asked approval for this fund by the time the economic conference of the American republics starts in Bogota, Colombia, Sept. 5.

3. Advance approval for a food-for-the-hungry proposal which he said will be presented to the United Nations General Assembly in September.

Eisenhower said this will be a program, "whereby we and other fortunate nations can, together, make greater use of our combined agricultural abundance to help feed the hungry of the world."

On the domestic side, Eisenhower listed upwards of a score of actions that he has said Congress should attend to now and let them "go begging for months to come."

Eisenhower declared only 6 of 27 measures he had named last May as required by the national interest have been enacted into law so far.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower told Congress today this nation's military power "is second to none and will be kept that way."

Eisenhower said in a message to the reconvening Congress that if additional funds are needed to step up the country's readiness "I shall promptly request the necessary funds."

The President recited recent world events which he said de-

Prank Brings Death to a Guardsman

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Military and civil authorities were to decide today who has jurisdiction in a prank which resulted in the drowning of an Indiana National Guardsman.

Police said five Guardsmen had admitted throwing Spl. A.C. Walter R. Van Vickle, 34, Sharpville, Ind., into the St. Joseph River behind South Bend's National Guard Armory Saturday night.

Van Vickle, a Korean veteran and father of four, screamed "I can't swim" as he was dragged to the river, witnesses said. Three Guardsmen, including one of those being held, received hospital treatment after a vain rescue attempt.

The five told police they carried Van Vickle from his Jeep in the bivouac area, stripped him of his clothes and tossed him into what they thought was two feet of water. Police said they were told dunking ceremonies for new officers are a tradition Guardsmen indulge in on the last night of summer training.

Two new second lieutenants were also thrown into the river, but there was no further explanation why Van Vickle, an enlisted man, was so treated.

The five men in custody are Ralph E. Burt, 23, and Harold E. Shuppers, 20, both of Tipton; William S. Dowdy, 20, North Salem; Robert K. Yarnick, 19, Danville; and Arnold G. Bell, 22, Indianapolis.

A fish eradication demonstration will be held on the J. O. Johnson farm at Columbus on Wednesday, August 10, according to Calvin Caldwell, County Agent.

D. Leroy Gray, Extension Fish and Wildlife Specialist of Little Rock, will be on hand to supervise the demonstration and discuss fish pond management. The pond has been measured to determine the amount of rotenone to use in killing the fish. The rotenone will be added to the water at 9:30 a. m. The fish will begin coming to the top within 20 to 25 minutes.

Mr. Johnson said that fish were obtained from Louisiana to stock this pond in 1936. The purpose of this demonstration is to see if a better balance of fish can be obtained by taking all fish from the pond and restocking it the county agent said.

Asks Unified Fight on Communism

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Militant Catholicism is needed to offset their militant atheism of Communism, Bishop Cuthbert M. O'Gara told the Catholic Central Union here yesterday.

O'Gara, 74, has been an outspoken critic of co-existence with Communism since 1953 when he was expelled from China after two years in Red prisons. He now is a member of the Papal Court.

The greatest realization of his prison days, O'Gara said, was that Communists are willing to make any sacrifice to achieve their goals. He said this was ironic since sacrifice is basically a Christian doctrine.

"You cannot hope for peaceful co-existence with Communism," the bishop said. "You cannot under any terms consort with Satan and at the same time with Christ."

O'Gara addressed the opening of a four-day Central Union convention here.

Leave Congo Now, U. S. Tells the Belgians

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Two rival proposals may be put before the Security Council today to get U. N. troops into the secessionist Congo province of Katanga.

Diplomatic sources said Ceylon and Tunisia probably would introduce a resolution specifying that the 12,000-man U. N. force in the Congo will not intervene in internal conflicts.

The aim would be to assure Katanga Premier Moise Tshombe, who says his own troops will fight if the U. N. force tries to come in, that the U. N. force will not try to bring the province under the control of Premier Patrice Lumumba's central Congo government.

The resolution by Ceylon and Tunisia also was expected to call for withdrawal of Belgian troops from all the Congo.

Indications were that the Soviet Union might introduce a resolution of its own, or amendments to the Ceylon-Tunisia resolution, to authorize U. N. units to use any force necessary to get into Katanga.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov told a report, or Sunday he had not yet decided whether to submit a proposal. But in Moscow the Soviet Communist newspaper Pravda said the Congolese wanted the Security Council to "issue an order to the U. N. forces for the immediate liberation of Katanga from the Belgian occupiers."

The council meeting was postponed until noon today so that a delegation from Lumumba's government could attend. Vice Premier Antoine Gizenga was expected to demand that the council send U. N. troops into Katanga immediately.

A three-man delegation from the Katanga government flew in Sunday night. Finance Minister Jean Kibwe told newsmen he would ask the United Nations to "declare a moratorium" in the dispute over Katanga's future, await the withdrawal of Belgian troops and then supervise a provincial referendum on independence from, or unity with, the Congo.

Kibwe said the referendum would show Katanga's people are entirely behind Tshombe's government. He told one reporter Katanga's 4,000-man army is strong enough to beat Lumumba's, which he described as "none at all."

U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold reported to the Security Council Saturday that the "fanatical opposition" of Tshombe and his government made it apparent the U. N. troops would have to shoot their way into Katanga.

Hammarskjold said the U. N. troops were not authorized to shoot except in self defense. He suggested that the council make clear that the U. N. force would not turn the province over to the central government against its wishes.

Final Rites for Dr. A. L. Hardage Held Monday

Dr. Albert Loydace Hardage, aged 52, well known Hope dentist, was found dead Saturday afternoon in his car on a dirt road south of Hope.

Coroner Dr. Lynn Harris ruled the death suicide by carbon monoxide poisoning.

Officers said a garden hose had been connected to the exhaust pipe and placed inside the closed car. Police had been notified of his absence by his wife when he did not return for lunch. The officers discovered the body about mid afternoon.

Dr. Hardage was born at Arkadelphia, the son of the late Joe S. and Blanche Williams Hardage. He graduated from Baylor Dental College at Dallas, Texas and was a major in the Dental Corps in World War II.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Edith Carter Hardage, two sons, A. Carter Hardage of Hope and Harry Hardage of Little Rock; a brother, Dr. Paul Hardage of Arkadelphia and a sister, Mrs. Basil York of Hot Springs.

Services were held at 10 a. m. Monday at Oakerest Funeral Chapel by Dr. John McClanahan. Burial was in Rose Hill Cemetery at Arkadelphia.

Hyatt Infant Is Buried Saturday

American Nations to Cooperate Against Subversive Activities

Boll Weevil Population at a Low Level

Second generation boll weevil emergence is general in southwest Arkansas, but boll weevil populations are generally at a low level, reports Extension Entomologist Grover Dowell.

This can be attributed to the extremely dry weather of the past weeks. Activity is increasing in fields with adequate moisture for plant growth. However, in fields showing stress from lack of moisture, boll weevil infestations are stagnant or on the decline.

High temperatures have been a big factor in controlling boll weevils this year. There is a high percent of kill of boll weevil grubs in punctured squares lying on the ground.

Bollworms present more of a problem to the cotton farmer in southwest Arkansas than the boll weevil at this particular time. Bollworm moths continue to emerge in large numbers and egg and larval counts remain high.

In cotton this is cutting out, farmers should watch closely for bollworm damage and apply control measures when needed. If bollworm moths are laying their eggs in the terminals of the cotton plant, then insecticides should be used when it is 10 percent of the squares show signs of bollworm feeding.

Aphids, spider mites, and plant bugs are not a problem in any of the fields scouted in southwest Arkansas.

For farmers who desire boll weevil protection, calcium arsenate is doing an excellent job in protecting the bolls from weevil damage.

In fields that have cut out completely from lack of moisture, bolls should be protected until they are at least 16 days old. Dowell gives this rule of thumb to determine when a boll is no longer susceptible to boll weevil damage. If a boll can be sliced easily with a knife, the boll can be damaged by the weevil. However, if it cannot be sliced, then it is resistant to damage by the boll weevil.

There were 153 fields scouted in southwest Arkansas for the week ending August 5. There were 145 fields infested with boll weevils and 123 with bollworms. No aphids or spider mites were found. The average percent punctured squares was 10.3.

13th Negro Assigned to White School

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Little Rock School Board has assigned a 13th Negro pupil to the Central high school for the fall term but turned down the applications of 39 Negroes who want to attend all-white junior highs.

Everette Dixon Morehead, a junior, was the eighth Negro assigned to Central High for the fall term. Five Negroes have been assigned to Hall, the city's other integrated school.

The board had announced some time ago it did not plan to extend desegregation to junior highs this year.

Thirty-three other Negro high school students had asked for transfers from all-Negro Monroe Mann High to Central and Hall but no approval was granted on these requests.

School board member B. Frank McKelvey said Saturday that half of the 33 did not appear for scheduled hearings and their requests were denied. He said the petitions of some others would be heard at an Aug. 25 board meeting.

The assignments are made under the Arkansas pupil placement law, which allows school boards to consider several factors, not including race, in placing students.

The student may appeal his assignment, as did the 74 Negroes, and if their appeals are denied, they may take their cases to a state court.

Schools begin fall classes Sept. 6. The board postponed to its Aug. 25 meeting and decision on a transfer appeal from a Negro girl student, Irma Jean Ruten originally was assigned to Central, but was reassigned to Mann when she said she was interested in taking band.

The board said all Central band positions were filled and there were vacancies in the Mann band. A challenge to the school board's use of the pupil placement law is pending in U. S. District Court here. Negro students have asked Federal Judge John E. Miller to bypass the law and order students assigned by residential area and without regard to race. Miller has the appeal under advisement.

Issue Passed Over Strong Cuba Objection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hemisphere representatives agreed today, over strong Cuban objections, to have their foreign ministers discuss cooperation against subversive activities.

Cuba, suing by U. S. assertions that it is heading for a Communist-controlled dictatorship, had fought the agenda proposed for the historic Aug. 16 meeting of foreign ministers of the American republics.

It calls for the ministers to review cooperation against the "subversive activities of any organization, government or their agents."

The 21-nation council of the Organization of American States approved it with only Cuban dissenting.

The council, after a debate marked by heated exchanges between Cuba and the United States, rejected point by point Cuban objections to the agenda.

The State Department meanwhile denounced Cuba's seizure of U. S. property as "a calculated plan" which cuts off Cuba's nose in order to spite the American face.

Press officer Lincoln Witholt called the nationalization of all most one billion dollars worth of private U. S. property.

"Another step in a calculated plan to destroy the economic benefits which these enterprises brought to the Cuban people," Cuban Ambassador Carlos Lechuga told the council of the Organization of American States at its meeting today that the proposed agenda "does not correspond to American continental reality nor to the problems of the countries of our America."

U. S. Ambassador John C. Drexler immediately replied that Lechuga's statement "does not add anything new."

Lechuga again said that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's promised support for Cuba in its disputes with the United States is a "solid guarantee that the economic and military superiority of the United States cannot continue being used, as in the past, to shrink or eliminate the sovereignty of an American nation."

Cuba had been expected to take an uncompromising attitude over the foreign ministers' meeting scheduled in Costa Rica.

The hardening of Cuban policy was made clear over the weekend as the Castro regime, boasting of its close link with the Soviet Union, ordered the seizure of all most all American-owned property in the island.

More evidence of hardening may accumulate today as the 21-nation Council of the Organization of American States considers the agenda for the foreign ministers' meeting in San Jose, Costa Rica Aug. 15.

The ministers tentatively are scheduled to discuss tensions between Venezuela and the Dominican Republic, and between the United States and Cuba.

But Cuban Foreign Minister Raul Roa has said, "We'll laugh at any resolution that condemns Cuba." His government has asked for a new agenda, which would feature Cuban accusations that the United States has committed economic aggression against Cuba and has interfered in her internal affairs.

The agenda change, already rejected by an OAS committee, will be considered here by the OAS Council.

The U. S. charges against Cuba came in a 78-page memorandum made public by the State Department Sunday but given to newsmen well in advance of Castro's

CHAPTER I

Althea was a lavender-blaze in sun, the burro weeds still dusky green, when Brett Fasken came out of the cedar brakes and got his first look in six years at those dim and red bluffs stacked like dabbled cardboard behind Pack-er's Crossing.

Country looked dry—powerful dry, he thought, eying it; the San Pedro little more than a gullerling gurgle scarce reaching the locks of the flat-tailed chocolate roan he was forking. He'd never seen the river so low or the roundabout range so yellow at this time of year. But it was good to be back. He hoped it was any- how.

Vonder, by the bend and half hidden in the heat-cured fronds of yellowing salt cedar, was where he'd dropped the 20-point buck.

He grinned, remembering Jo's disgust at having to come all this way from the ranch to cut up a bothersome nuisance's kill. Jo—short for Josephine—was Brett's notional sister, older by six years. Belle of every party, she had drawn men like flies. Maybe, Brett mused, that had been her real trouble, having things too easy and never being wrong. A man once in a while liked to be right himself.

He'd sighed a plenty over Jo. She'd got everything she wanted, harring one, if a man could put any stock in rumor she'd never got a ring. The feller she'd been real set on—Clint Wilder—had gone and got himself killed. It had fallen on Brett to tell her Clint wasn't coming back, even if Jo'd done her best after the Old Man died to make something of Brett—been told to give her that. He'd been stubborn as a Neutcher steer, wanting to make his own mind up.

He'd never regretted signing over his share of the ranch. The sap had been coming up in him then; he wasn't taking nobody's word for what he might find beyond the rim of the next hill. In six years he'd seen for himself. Right now he wouldn't have traded that experience for a dozen ranches of the kind Hob- bled O had become.

He was tired, fed up with roving; there came a time when a man wanted something better, when the pleasures of former times no longer pleased. There was nothing wrong with being a roughneck but there was a point of no return and a range bum was a sure sorry sight!

He was a dark-haired man, big-shouldered, broad of chest with sun-darkened cheeks and a wind-ruddled face etched with the marks of past dangers. One ear was thickened to more than twice its proper size. His nose was a humpbacked hook too many fists had tampered with. A scar ran from his left eyebrow well into the hairline and two of his front teeth were mostly lost. He limped—not too badly yet observedly.

As he approached the town he noted that it hadn't changed a great deal. The old Red Wall was still selling nourishment. The dock of Joe Able's Mercantile appeared stacked with more incoming goods than Brett could recall ever before having noticed, but none of these places looked as big as he remembered.

McInery still ran the livery. Brett got down before the Mercantile, loosely knotting the reins.

He backhanded a surplus of sweat off his cheeks, and felt the rubbery rasp of beard stubble. Glancing around as he moved up the steps, he bated a moment in the trapped heat of the porch to watch a dappling of sunlight and shadow that wind and a ragged tuft of cloud were hustling up the wagon-cluttered street. Shaking his head he reached out for the door.

His hand ran into something yielding that cracked and abruptly dropped away in a series of miniature explosions of sound that whipped Brett about as though a rope had laid hold of him.

All he saw right away was a dark stormy eyes, blue flashes like silver ripping through a summer night. Then his stare took in her mop of yellow hair, her angry mouth, the curves be- low it.

He dragged off his hat and shifted his eyes uncomfortably to the profession of parcels tumbled over the dusty boards. The quiet cotton of a betrayed "unmentionables" protruded from one burst wrapping. He swallowed, embarrassed by her crimson blush, stepped involuntarily back, hastily disengaging his glance.

"Why don't you watch where—"

She stopped, mouth open, eyes sprung wide as, inside the store, someone incredulously gasped: "Brett Fasken!"

The color thinned from her cheeks, and an unfathomable expression came into her stare. "Sorry, ma'am," Brett mul- tered. He stooped and com- menced gathering her bundles, feeling about as prominent as a tenderfoot trapper skinning his first skunk. The spilled drawers—that's what they sure enough were—he got hold of like he would a live snake, grimly, try- ing to squash them back out of sight and making mean work of it.

He stood up, jaws red as fire and gave her another parched look as he straightened. "I'll tol- erate," he growled. He blew sweat off his nose.

She had hold of herself now, the whole look of her more guarded. The quickness of her mind was apparent when she said, "Lola Trone," abruptly. "I wasn't around when you—left." Her eyes dug at him more insis- tently. "Are you Brett Fas- kin?"

Brett's cheeks turned percep- tibly darker. Curiously reluctant for a man who'd never cared what others thought, he nodded. There was an implied need, al- most an urgency, in her tone he could not help but notice. "Ex- pect I'll have to plead guilty," he said. "Where-at's your rig?"

Her eyes continued to hold him. Simultaneously both of them became aware of the dragged-out silence. "Right over there—" her words tumbled over each other. "In front of the bakeshop." She took a deep breath. "You needn't trouble. I can manage."

"Pleasure," Brett said, ignoring her hands. He stepped aside to let her pass, seeing the faces pull back from the windows.

He considered the swing of her hip and shoulder as he trailed her around a tangle of wagons to a dilapidated buggy and stowed her parcels in the space behind the seat. There was no top to the thing, and its wood looked gray as the store porch steps.

She stood darkly watching. "I suppose you're here to claim your part of the estate."

"Come again?" Brett said, "Hobbled O."

The way she said it made a curse of the name. Brett's eyes considered her cool, set face. The heat in this bright saffron light hardly touched her. She had smooth skin tanned deeply enough to give her a kind of half-gypsy look. Her age he put at a probable 20.

"I can see you haven't much use for the outfit."

"As a part of what your sister calls 'trash,' about average, I'd say."

This seemed like to be a heap worse than he'd figured. "You're a small owner then?"

"My brother," she said flatly, "runs Scab &—on the Araviapa."

He tried a smile. "I expect I'm supposed to know what you're driven at."

"Didn't Mister Joseph send for you?"

Brett had heard they were calling his sister that. According to the talk he'd picked up here and there she already claimed about two-thirds of this country and had her sights set toward gobbling the rest of it. This might even be true, it sounded enough like her. But the idea of Josephine sending for him was far fetched enough to make Brett Fasken laugh.

The girl's eyes blazed.

"It's plain," Brett said, sobering, "you don't know Jo very

Princess' Husband Boss of the House

LONDON (UPI)—Princess Margaret's commoner husband, Anthony Armstrong-Jones, rules her household with the authorita- tive air of an absolute monarch. It was reported over the weekend.

The truth about the couple's Kensington Palace home only three weeks after he was hired leaked from behind the curtain of royal security Thursday.

Cronin often described as the "perfect" butler, and formerly with United States Ambassador John Hay Whitney, let the word drop about his former employer. He promptly denied reports that he and 30-year Armstrong-Jones had exchanged blows. But he did complain.

"I was not allowed to employ any staff, even a charwoman (cleaning woman)."

"I did not pay them their wages and many other matters were not left in my hands as they should have been."

English butlers traditionally manage the household staff and Cronin expected to do so.

Cronin said that "Mr. Jones—I always called him 'sir'—because he doesn't like to be called Mr. Jones—did all of this himself."

Cronin's abrupt leave-taking discovered last Friday, was a warning that Armstrong-Jones may have moved into the palace set from the working class Putnam section but that he is well.

She got into the buggy, ignor- ing his hand.

Brett smothered his annoy- ance. "She after your place?"

"She's trying to make my brother out a rustler!"

Says Johnson Using Funds of Taxpayers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Alex- ander Wiley (R-W.Va.) contended in- day that Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Democratic vice-presi- dential nominee, was using tax- payers' funds "to drum up propa- ganda for a political campaign."

Wiley, a member of the Senate Space Committee of which John- son is the chairman, protested there was a "lack of coordination bridge farm, a resort in Ulster County, to eliminate "the phase from its advertising."

Justice Kenneth S. Macaferri set aside the order. An appeal by the commission is likely.

"The words may be said to de- cline to eliminate the phrase describe the type of persons who, in the main, have patronized the resort, but the use thereof does not, in the court's judgment, sug- gest that other than Christians are unwanted or excluded," the judge's opinion said.

"It is not unusual to read ad- vertisements which state 'Italian cuisine,' 'French cooking,' or 'Kosher diet observed.' Would one say that such descriptive words would establish that the author was engaging in a discriminatory practice?"

Wiley said in a sharply worded statement.

The committee report, made public Tuesday, criticized what it called a lack of coordination in the space medical activities by the Defense Department and the Na- tional Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"I was surprised to read in yesterday's paper that the space committee—of which I am a mem- ber—had issued a report provid- ing ammunition for the commit- tee chairman—now a vice-presi- dential nominee—to throw at the administration," Wiley said in a sharply worded statement.

DOROTHY DIX

At Point of No Return, Still Loves Husband

BY HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I have never won anything so please may I win your attention for a little while? I am 40, love my husband dearly and have a little boy, 4. My husband has been seeing another woman, 40 years old, for two years. In our 15 years of marriage he has had many affairs but this seems hardest to break up. I have talked to lawyers and had detectives working on the case. My husband says he does not want to leave me or our little boy (who loves him dearly), yet he goes right back to that woman, stays out, drinks and comes home smelling like one brand of toilet water.

This woman drains men of their money, drinks and likes a big night "on the town." She has two grown daughters. Is she serious over my husband? Should I give him up? How can I fight it? It would kill me to separate but I can't stand to have him continue to lie to me and see this woman tear him from two that love him more than she ever could. —Most Despondent

Dear Most Despondent: Since you have gone so far as to consult lawyers and put detectives on your husband's trail, I fear the mutual trust so essential in marriage has long since withered and died. However it's worth a final try at patching matters up, if you do still love him. Lay down the law. Tell him he must choose between you and the other woman. Unless he leaves her, you go.

Drop that defeatist attitude expressed in the opening paragraph of your letter to me, if you hope to rekindle his love. I'm sending three leaflets which may prove useful: "Divorces and Separations," "Keystones of the Home" and "Marital Harmony." Good luck!

Dear Helen: I have known a fellow all my life but only in the past two years did we decide that we really loved one another. He is in the service. We talk about getting married when he is 21. By then I will be 18. I know my mother would not agree to this as she feels I should go in training. I respect her opinion. But I love this boy very much. Now, my parents talk of moving away, which means I may not see him again. —Wondering

Dear Wondering: Why force the issue? If the boy really loves you, he will find a way to see you, even though it takes him to the moon and back. Since you respect your mother's opinion you should in all fairness to her, have a heart-to-heart talk. How old are you now? If under 16 you are too young to go steady with any boy, much less consider marriage.

I am writing this in the interest of a close friend. She had been going with a fellow but they broke up; now he just dates her once in awhile. She still likes him a lot and wants him back. He shows signs of still liking her to. She will appreciate any help you can give her in getting him back. —Wondering

Dear Wondering: Tell your friend that indifference, even if simulated, is the surest way to relieve her boy friend. He should make the first move toward a reconciliation. A little competition would help.

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her in care of this newspaper.

Benjamin Franklin used playing cards as insulation in the electrical friction machine which he built in 1751.

The individual claimants, the Fore Bros. Motor Co. of Weiner and the town of Holly Grove, are seeking to recover funds they said they had in the various deposit boxes.

U. S. District Judge Gordon E. Young is the man who eventually will have to decide who's to receive the money.

Other major American businesses nationalized were the Cuban Telephone Co., in which the International Telephone and Telegraph Co., has a 27 1/2-million-dollar equity (the Standard Oil (New Jersey) refinery, about $70 million; Texaco refinery, $45 to $50 million; Sinclair Oil Co. operations in Cuba, worth about $5 million and 36 American-owned sugar mills worth about $200 million.

Some of these plants had been under Cuban government control for some time but had not been formally expropriated.

Castro said that the seizures were in retaliation for "economic aggression" by the United States—and made plain he meant President Eisenhower's slash in U. S. imports of Cuban sugar.

noted "an intensification of Communist treachery."

"Indeed," Eisenhower said, "the Soviet dictator has talked loosely and irresponsibly about a possible missile attack on the United States."

Eisenhower recalled the recent attack on an American plane over international waters. He said the Soviet delegation has walked out of the Geneva disarmament negotiations.

"The Communists continue to exploit situations of unrest flagrantly striving to turn to their ends the struggles and hopes of peoples for a better world," he said. "These Communist efforts have recently reached new extremes in Central Africa."

"All of us know about Cuba," Eisenhower's message was directed to a Congress that took time out for the presidential nomination conventions and now is returning for an abbreviated session that could have a vital bearing on the outcome of the November election.

The message was addressed to both the Senate and House, even though the Senate alone reconvened today. The House returns next Monday.

Since the House was not in session, the message for it went to the House clerk.

ald convenes today for an abbreviated post-convention session of Congress that could have a vital bearing on the outcome of the 1960 presidential election.

The session starts off with a plea for action from President Eisenhower in a special message which he arranged to send to the Senate reconvening at noon following a five-week recess for the two national political conventions.

Although the House doesn't reconvene until a week from today, the Eisenhower message was sent simultaneously to the House clerk.

An air of political controversy was apparent as both Democrats and Republicans sought to make the most of the August session. Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, the Democratic presidential nominee, said Sunday he believed Eisenhower should send Congress this week an emergency defense spending program to bolster the nation's cold war strength.

He said Eisenhower could ask more money now, could unfreeze money already appropriated but not being spent, or could speed up other defense spending now being held up by the House.

A backlog of other politically controversial bills before the session includes the always touchy foreign aid appropriation, proposed increases in minimum wages, medical care for the aged, federal aid for schools, and housing legislation.

Many of these were bitterly fought over in Congress before last month's recess.

Frontier Castro's brother, Raul Castro, said Friday night, "I am grateful for and we accept Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's promise of military support."

East Cagers West Gridders Are Favored

By WICK TEMPLE

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The East is the favorite in basketball and the West gets the nod in football Saturday as Arkansas high school athletes put on their greatest one-day show in history.

The fifth annual high school All-Star games are scheduled for 2 p. m. (basketball) at Barton Coliseum and 8:20 p. m. (football) at War Memorial Stadium.

The 100 prep stars from last year's bumper crop have five more days to get ready for the big show. This is the first time both games have been played on the same day and because of this, officials of the sponsoring Arkansas High School Coaches Assn. hope for record crowds at both events.

The football score is tied 2-2 between the West and East since the game began in 1956. But the West has taken a 3-1 lead in basketball by winning for the past three years.

The football attendance record was set last year at 10,778. The biggest crowd to view an all-star game was 2,794 in 1957.

Stars like Donnie Kesinger of Forrest City and Don Shalley of Leachville give the East a favorite's role in this year's basketball game. The West's edge in football is not so defined, though, because of a strong East quarterback corps and a tough Platter line.

The West does have the best all-around backfield strength with Don Killian of DeQueen, Frank Blew of Fayetteville, Mike Edwards and Charles Jacob of Texarkana and Bobby Keen of Cross-sted providing a nucleus with all-state quarterback Pat Girard of El Dorado.

The East boasts three excellent quarterbacks in Larry Hoyt of Little Rock Catholic, Gordon Guest of Pine Bluff and Eugene Gilbert of Malvern.

The East's first unit in basketball includes all-stars Freddy White of Blytheville, Larry Hoyt of North Little Rock, Shalley and Kesinger. The fifth man is Dub Wilson of North Little Rock.

This compares with the West first team of Jim Magness of Hot Springs, Johnny Yocum of Fort Smith, Joe Brasel of Jasper, William Boley of Dover and Doug McKinney of Mulberry.

The West has depth but lacks height and the East's shooting strength is unrivaled in all-star history.

Actually, though, first teams don't mean much in this game. All-star rules specify that the three units must divide playing time evenly (10 minutes each) in the first half and for the first 15 minutes of the second half.

Only in the last 15 minutes of the game can coaches shuffle their lineups and leave the night's best performer's in to the finish.

The football game could hinge on the weather, because if it's wet, the East's strong passing and the West's feignous running game might be dulled. The first unit lines compare favorably, but the East has a slight advantage in the depth department.

Some of the outstanding players in football to date have been players Wilbur Owen of Conway and Mike Vinson of Jonesboro, and tackles Billy Waldrop of Blytheville and Nicky Avants of Hall.

The West line is led by tough John Robert Williamson of El Dorado at center, Gene Beutelschies of De Queen and Jim Presley of Fort Smith have been outstanding at tackle and Mack Landthrip of Clarksville and Jesse Butler of Springdale have stood out in the line.

The East quarterback brigade has a fine crop of ends to aim for. These include George Jones of Pine Bluff, Gary Robinson of Central and Billy Dickey of Hall.

All-stars Jim Grizzle of Fort Smith and Larry Vaughan of Hope are two of the pass-catchers who hope to grab Girard's tosses for the West.

Groat Could Be Nat'l Most Valuable Man

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dick Groat may not hit a home run or steal a base all year but today, with the National League season two-thirds over, he must be rated a leading candidate for most valuable player honors.

The 29-year-old Duke alum was given an example of his ingenuity as the Pirates swept a doubleheader from San Francisco Sunday 4-1 and 7-5 to pull away to their biggest lead of the season — 5½ games over Milwaukee and St. Louis.

It happened in the eighth inning of the nightcap. The score was tied 5-5 and Pittsburgh's Bill Mazeroski was on third following his single and bunt by pitcher Elroy Face and Joe Christopher.

Groat did the last thing the Giants defense expected. He bunted — the Pirates' third straight bunt. There wasn't even a play on Mazeroski at the plate and when Orlando Cepeda threw wildly to first, Christopher also scored.

Groat also played an important role in the opener, with three hits and one run batted in. His five hits in the two games gave him a league-leading total of 137 and a 7-7 tie in the opener. Sherry, who finished with six scoreless innings after a shaky start, received credit for his ninth victory.

Koufax struck out 11 and allowed only four hits in the nightcap. The Cards were held to a cap. Kenny Boyer's bases-loaded sin in the seventh of the nightcap drew in the winning runs as the victory in the opener. Los Angeles' fourth-place Dodgers climbed to within a game of second, taking two from Philadelphia 8-7 and 2-1.

Chicago's White Sox whittled New York's first-place lead in the American League to 1½ games by winning a pair from Washington 9-7 and 3-2 as Kansas City held the Yankees to a split. The Athletics triumphed 13-3 after New York had won the first 3-2. Baltimore trampled Cleveland twice, led Frank Thomas' three-run homer and 9-2 Detroit and Boston.

Louis Firpo Dies at Home in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Louis Angel Firpo, died of a heart attack Sunday at 65, still convinced that he won the heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey almost four decades ago.

It was on Sept. 14, 1923 that Firpo stepped in the ring at the Polo Grounds to battle Dempsey, divided a pair. The Tigers won the first 7-2 and the Red Sox took the second 1-0.

Bob Friend scattered seven hits, struck out six and coasted to his 12th Pittsburgh victory in the opener. A seventh-inning home run by the Giants' Hobie Landrith cost him a shutout.

Pittsburgh overcame a 5-0 deficit in the nightcap. After pecking away at Billy O'Dell for single runs in the second and fourth, they tied it in the fifth on a three-run homer by Christopher, his first in the majors. Elroy Face, in relief, picked up his sixth triumph.

Johnny Roseboro, Tommy Davis, Maury Wills and pitchers Larry Sherry and Sandy Koufax were the stars of the Dodgers' double triumph. Roseboro doubled Davis home in the ninth to break a league-leading total of 137 and a 7-7 tie in the opener. Sherry, who finished with six scoreless innings after a shaky start, received credit for his ninth victory.

Koufax struck out 11 and allowed only four hits in the nightcap. The Cards were held to a cap. ## Orioles Hitting Hard, Sweep 2 From Indians

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

And now they've got hitting, too. The main rag against the Baltimore Orioles was their almost total lack of power.

The experts last spring conceded Paul Richards' kiddie crew had speed, defense and pitching. But who besides Gus Triandos and Gene Wobbling were capable of providing the long ball?

Richards showed 'em Sunday. The supposedly weak-hitting Orioles banged out 30 hits, including six home runs and two doubles in their 8-6 and 9-2 sweep of a doubleheader from Cleveland.

They slammed five home runs in the first game to set a club record. Woodling hit one. The others were made by Jim Gentile (2), Jackie Brandt and pitcher Jack Fisher.

The double triumph boosted the third-place Orioles to within a half-game of second and two games of the top.

The runner-up Chicago White Sox whittled New York's first-place lead in the American League to 1½ games by winning a pair from Washington 9-7 and 3-2 as Kansas City held the Yankees to a split. The Athletics triumphed 13-3 after New York had won the first 3-2. Baltimore trampled Cleveland twice, led Frank Thomas' three-run homer and 9-2 Detroit and Boston.
